Introduction

We realize the loss of a loved one can be a difficult and overwhelming time for you and your family, so we designed this guide to simplify the account settlement process and help you sort through the next steps. In this guide, we explain the general responsibilities of a personal representative (i.e., executor or administrator) and provide useful information you will need to handle the account settlement process. Survivors have several options for contacting the Survivor Support Settlement Branch:

- By phone: 1-800-883-3323
- By fax: 703-255-7963
- By mail: Navy Federal Credit Union
P.O. Box 3002
Merrifield, VA 22116-9887
Attn: Survivor Support
- Online: navyfederal.org
- In person: Visit your nearest branch

Please note that the information contained in this Survivor's Guide is for informational purposes only and not for the purpose of providing legal, tax, financial planning or investment advice. We encourage you to seek financial, tax and legal advice from professional advisors with respect to any particular issue or problem you may encounter. Where appropriate, contact the probate court or its equivalent in the jurisdiction where the property is located for further information on the probate process.

Survivor Support Settlement Services

Upon contacting Navy Federal, you will be assigned a Survivor Support Case Specialist. Your Case Specialist will review the deceased member's accounts and determine necessary account adjustments. He or she can assist you with debt cancellation claims, verifying required legal documents and determining entitlement of funds. Case Specialists can be reached at 1-800-883-3323. Once settlement is complete, we will provide the survivor and/or administrator with a summary letter of all actions taken.

Continuing Your Family's Membership

Upon the death of a Navy Federal member, the deceased's family remains eligible for membership in their own right. Eligible family members include spouses, parents, children (natural born, step and adopted), siblings, grandparents and grandchildren. Once family members have joined, they can extend the membership opportunity to their immediate family members. For more information about membership eligibility, call 1-888-842-6328.

Updating Your Family's Estate Plans¹

Navy Federal Investment Services² offers no-cost estate planning consultation through MEMBERS Trust Company. They then provide written recommendations for your family's overall estate plans to help settle your loved one's estate. MEMBERS Trust Company can also help establish estate plans for surviving family members. This can pre-empt future complications with probate or guardianship court, and it can also help you avoid estate taxes. It can even assist with managing assets for minors or heirs who may need assistance. Call Navy Federal Investment Services at 1-877-221-8108 to discuss your Estate Planning Options.

Your Financial Future

Need advice about what to do with the disposition of accounts and assets? Financial representatives from Navy Federal Investment Services can offer professional re-investment guidance on accounts held at Navy Federal, and they can provide advice about stocks, bonds, mutual funds, and life and long-term care insurance. Call Navy Federal Investment Services at 1-877-221-8108 to set up a no-cost, no-obligation appointment. You can also visit their website at navyfederal.org/nfis.

Account Settlement at Navy Federal

The following frequently asked questions will help you know what to expect.

Savings and Checking Accounts

How long will the affected Navy Federal accounts remain open?

We recommend that you settle your loved one's accounts as soon as possible. Navy Federal will continue reporting to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) under the deceased's Social Security Number (SSN) until the account is closed or retitled to the surviving joint owner, provided they are eligible for membership. By taking prompt action, you can avoid complications resulting from continued IRS reporting under the deceased's SSN. We cannot predict how long it will take for an account to settle without understanding the scope of an individual's circumstances.

What will happen to direct deposits coming to Navy Federal?

If a direct deposit is received from one of the federal paying agencies (such as Veterans Administration, Social Security or DFAS Kansas City) on or after the member's date of death, Navy Federal is required to return the funds. All paying agencies should be notified of the member's death as soon as possible. See the Important Phone Numbers list on page 12 for key points of contact.

How do I reach the Social Security Administration concerning survivor benefits?

You can reach the Social Security Administration by using their toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213. Since it can take up to 90 days to process a claim, it is important to notify them as soon as possible. Typically, you will be required to provide:

- proof of death, such as a certified copy of the death certificate
- the SSN of the deceased
- the name of the deceased's employer
- the deceased's most recent W-2 forms or self-employment tax return showing earnings in the year of their death
- a certified or original copy of the birth certificates of the spouse and minor children
- divorce papers if the divorced spouse is applying for benefits

What will happen to automatic payments that are being deducted from the affected Navy Federal accounts?

You need to notify the companies that are debiting the deceased's accounts that the member has passed away. Advise them to stop the automatic payment because the account is being closed.

If I am a joint owner on an affected account and have my own ATM and debit cards, can I still use the cards to access the account?

Yes, as long as the account is classified as "Joint Account—With Survivorship." You have the option of canceling your cards or keeping them active until the account is closed or retitled. We automatically cancel the deceased's cards.

If I am a joint owner on an affected Navy Federal checking account, can I still write checks from the account?

Yes, as long as the account is classified as "Joint Account—With Survivorship." Eventually, this account will be closed or retitled to the surviving joint owner. As a joint owner, you may be eligible for Navy Federal membership. If so, you can open an Estate Account (see page 9) or open your own checking account if you do not already have one. If the account is classified as "Joint Account—No Survivorship," no checks should be written from it after the date of death.

What will happen to direct deposits?

When you are a joint owner with survivorship, you can still use your checks and ATM/debit cards while the deceased's accounts remain open.

IRA spousal beneficiaries can treat funds
as their own.

How will Money Market Savings Accounts (MMSAs) be handled?

If the account is classified as “Joint Account—With Survivorship,” the MMSA will be closed or retitled to the surviving joint owner. If the account is classified as “Joint Account— No Survivorship,” no checks should be written from it after the date of death. As a joint owner, you may be eligible for Navy Federal membership. If so, you can open an Estate Account (see page 9) or a MMSA if you do not already have one. If there is no joint owner or if the account is classified as “Joint Owner—No Survivorship,” the funds will be disbursed as determined by an affidavit or court order according to regulations of the member’s home state.

An affidavit is a notarized, sworn and written declaration made before an official authority, such as a judge of the court or notary public. The affidavit states that there was no estate established, according to the bylaws of the state in which the deceased member resided. It also states who is entitled to the funds, such as a surviving spouse, child or sole heir, according to a Will. The affidavit should also mention account numbers and account values and relieve Navy Federal of all responsibility once the funds are disbursed.

If I am the designated administrator of the estate but neither a joint owner of the deceased’s accounts nor a Navy Federal member, will I be able to access information on the account, such as which checks have cleared?

Yes. Once court or probate documentation is provided stating that you are the estate administrator, you will be entitled to all account information.

Certificates and Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs)

How will certificates be handled?

The disbursement of funds from a certificate varies, based on its ownership. If the certificate has an individual owner or has a joint owner and is classified as “Joint Account—No Survivorship,” the funds will be disbursed to the deceased’s estate or next of kin. If the certificate has a joint owner and is classified as “Joint Account—With Survivorship,” the surviving joint owner may choose one of the following options:

- Transfer the certificate funds “as is” into a newly established certificate, keeping the same dividend rate and maturity date as the original.
- Cash in the certificate without penalty.

If the joint owner does not have a Navy Federal account and is eligible for membership, they may decide to establish membership and transfer the certificate funds “as is” into a newly established certificate, keeping the same dividend rate and maturity date as the original.

How will IRAs be handled?

The IRA account(s) will be closed without a Navy Federal penalty and distributed to the designated beneficiary(ies). A spousal beneficiary may choose to accept the funds from the IRA account(s) as their own and deposit them directly into an IRA account established in their name. For (a) non-spousal beneficiary(ies), the funds will be placed into an IRA beneficiary account. A Survivor Support Case Specialist will provide the beneficiary(ies) with additional information and disbursement options.

Payable on Death (POD) Accounts and Deposit Trust Accounts

Navy Federal offers 2 account options to help members manage their assets during their lifetime and upon their death.

How will POD accounts be handled?

POD accounts are offered with 3 different options: Individual POD, POD With a Joint Owner With Survivorship and POD With a Joint Owner Without Survivorship. The funds in an Individual POD account will be disbursed directly to the named beneficiary(ies) on the account. The funds in Joint Owner POD accounts classified as "Joint Account—With Survivorship" will be transferred to the joint owners for their use and discretion. Only upon the death of all account owners are funds disbursed to the designated beneficiary(ies). If a member's legal trust is the named beneficiary, this designation shall supersede any individually named beneficiary(ies), and payment will be made in full to the legal trust. If the Joint Owner POD account is classified as "Joint Account—No Survivorship," the funds shall be distributed directly to the designated beneficiary(ies). If a member's legal trust is the named beneficiary, this designation shall supersede any individually named beneficiary(ies), and payment will be made in full to the legal trust.

How will Deposit Trust accounts be handled?

Navy Federal's Trust Accounts are depository accounts that can hold funds under a legal trust. A trust account is one established in the name of a legal trust and managed by the trustee, co-trustee, successor trustee or trust administrator, as outlined in the trust agreement during the lifetime and upon the death of the grantor. Generally, funds held in the trust pass directly to the beneficiaries or the legal trust without passing through probate.

How will Deposit Trustee accounts be handled?

Deposit Trustee accounts were opened before Navy Federal began offering POD and Deposit Trust accounts. These accounts were used for a variety of purposes to include naming (a) beneficiary(ies) and managing a trust. Funds in an Individual Trustee account will be disbursed to the beneficiary(ies) or to the legal trust if one was named as the beneficiary. If the trustee account has a co-trustee, the funds will be passed to the co-trustee to manage until their death. Only upon the death of all account owners are funds disbursed to the designated beneficiary(ies).

Please note: Legal trusts are set up outside Navy Federal and generally require the service of an attorney. If you would like a referral to an attorney for assistance in setting up a legal trust, please contact MEMBERS Trust Company¹ at 1-855-358-7878.

Consumer Loans

During settlement of the deceased's Navy Federal consumer loan(s), Navy Federal will defer interest accrual on any outstanding loan balance. During this period, any applicable Payment Protection Plan coverage will be applied to the date-of-death loan balance. The estate's point of contact will be advised of any outstanding balance. Outstanding loan balances become the responsibility of the co-signer, co-borrower or member's estate. The estate executor/administrator must pay off all existing loan balances or provide Navy Federal with the necessary documentation to properly file a claim against the member's estate. In those instances where there is no co-signer or co-borrower, or the estate is insolvent, the loan will be referred to the Lending Department for further action.

Interest accrual on individual loans is waived from the date of death through the date of settlement.

Credit Cards

How will affected Navy Federal Credit Card accounts be handled?

If the deceased was the primary cardholder, the credit card account will be closed. However, if there is a joint cardholder on the credit card account, the account can remain open and be retitled in the joint cardholder's name.

If I am the joint cardholder on an affected Navy Federal Credit Card, can I continue using the card?

Yes. You can continue using your card, and the balance becomes your responsibility.

What should I do with the deceased's credit card if he/she was the only borrower on the credit card?

The deceased's card and those of any authorized users should be destroyed.

What will happen to unpaid charges on affected credit cards?

Individual credit card accounts will be closed. Credit cards with a joint cardholder will remain open, but they will be retitled to reflect the joint cardholder as the primary cardholder.

Should I continue making monthly payments on the account?

Until the actual outstanding liability is known, please do not make any payments. No interest will accrue on the date-of-death balance during this assessment period.

Will monthly statements continue to be issued? To whom will they be addressed?

If the account has a joint cardholder, the statements will continue to be issued and addressed to the joint cardholder as the new primary cardholder. If additional charges appear after the credit card account has been closed, statements will be sent to the person handling the estate's affairs. Occasionally, merchants post charges to the credit card account after it has been closed. This "forced charge" will generate a statement.

If I am an authorized user, am I liable for the balance on an affected credit card account?

You're unable to use the account after the death of the account holder. You must either destroy or return your card to Navy Federal. You only become liable for the balance if you apply for credit in your own right and request a transfer of the outstanding balance on the deceased member's card in your name. You are also liable for any charges made to the card after the death of the account holder.

If I am the joint cardholder, am I liable for the unpaid balance on an affected credit card account?

Yes. You are also responsible for any charges that post after the date of death.

What will happen to automatic payments that are being made to a credit card from an affected Navy Federal account?

Automatic payments will be canceled during the decedent account audit process.

Payment Protection Plans

If a Payment Protection Plan had been purchased on the Navy Federal consumer loan or credit card, the outstanding balance may be canceled as follows:

PLAN	COVERAGE (Please refer to the Payment Protection Plan Agreement and Disclosure for full details.)	MONTHLY COST PER $100 BORROWED (Primary Coverage)	MONTHLY COST PER $100 BORROWED (Joint Coverage)
Loss of Life	Up to $100,000 upon loss of life	$.072	$.144
Loss of Life and Disability	Up to $100,000 upon loss of life Up to 12 months or $12,000 in monthly payments canceled for disability	$.1608	$.3216
Loss of Life, Disability, and Involuntary Unemployment	Up to $100,000 upon loss of life Up to 12 months or $12,000 in monthly payments canceled for disability Up to 6 months or $6,000 in monthly payments canceled for unemployment	$.3536	$.7072

First Mortgage Loans, Fixed Equity Loans and Home Equity Lines

If I am the co-borrower on a Navy Federal mortgage and/or fixed equity loan that was held by the deceased (the primary borrower), what happens next?

You will become the primary borrower on the mortgage and/or equity loan, and our records will be updated to reflect this change. A certified copy of the death certificate and documentation validating the property ownership interest under state law will be required.

What happens when there is no co-borrower on the mortgage loan?

Navy Federal will communicate with a potential successor or heir to discuss the available options. However, please call Real Estate Lending Support at 1-800-243-9334 (option 2) if you have any questions you would like to discuss.

How will Home Equity Lines be handled?

If the deceased is the only borrower, the equity line will be frozen, and no additional advances can be made. If there is a co-borrower on the equity line, it will not be closed as long as the co-borrower signed the Security Instrument and is an owner of the property. If the co-borrower did not sign the Security Instrument and is not an owner of the property, the line will be frozen, and no additional advances can be made.

What will happen to automatic payments that were being made to the deceased's mortgage from a Navy Federal checking account, savings account or MMSA?

If the deceased member had a joint owner on the checking account, savings account or MMSA, the payments can continue for a limited time. As the deceased member's accounts are closed, a different account can be debited, or the automatic drafting will be discontinued.

What should I do if I am the new primary borrower but may not be able to afford the payments?

Contact one of our Loss Mitigation Specialists in the Mortgage Default Management Branch at 1-888-503-7102, option 4 to find out what options are available and how we can work together.

A certified copy of the death certificate and documentation validating the property ownership interest under state law will be required.

Your Case Specialist will guide you through settling your loved one's Navy Federal accounts.

Private Student Loans and Student Refinance Loans

If the borrower dies, must private student loans, student refinance loans or parent refinance loans be repaid by the estate of the deceased?

The borrower's estate and/or the co-signer will be obligated for the existing loan balance. If the co-signer is no longer responsible for repaying the loan, the borrower's estate will remain obligated for the loan.

When will a co-signer be responsible for repaying the outstanding balance of the loan?

For Private Student Loans: If the borrower passes, the co-signer will no longer be responsible for repayment of the private student loan.

For Student Refinance Loans: If the borrower passes, the co-signer will no longer be responsible for the repayment of the Student Refinance Loan.

For Parent Refinance Loans: Primary borrowers (and co-signers, if applicable) on Parent Refinance Loans shall be forgiven in the event that the individual whose education was paid for with the Parent Refinance Loan passes away.

If the co-signer dies, how is the loan handled?

If the co-signer dies, the primary borrower on the loan is still financially obligated for the debt. However, we would still need to be notified of the passing to update our records.

What document does Navy Federal require when the borrower or co-signer dies?

Navy Federal must receive a copy of the death certificate or obituary confirming the death information. Please contact the Navy Federal Student Loan Center, Monday through Friday, 8 am to 8 pm, ET at 1-877-304-9302 for additional information.

What Is Probate?

Probate is the process by which the court determines the authenticity and validity of a Will. It is designed to protect the family and ensure that the persons who are entitled to receive the assets do receive them. It also provides a process to ensure that all debts and taxes are paid. The court will use the Will to determine who is to be appointed executor of the estate. If there is no Will, the court will appoint a personal representative (e.g., "administrator"), usually a spouse or relative. An attorney or a financial institution may also be appointed as executor or administrator. It is best to go to probate court as soon as possible and check with your local court for specific requirements in your location. This may be a trying time for you, but it is best to settle these matters as quickly and accurately as possible. The size and complexity of the deceased's estate, plus state probate laws, will determine how long the process will take. If the estate is large or complex, the probate process can take months or years to complete. On the other hand, the probate process may not be required if the deceased's accounts were classified as "Joint Account—With Survivorship." It is best to consult an attorney to determine what property is or is not subject to probate.

The documents required for probate and what they must contain can vary from one probate court to another. In addition to the deceased's full name and date of birth, most probate courts require, at a minimum, the following documents:

- Certified copy of the death certificate (this can often be filed later)
- Will, if there is one
- Copy of the marriage certificate (or the date and place of marriage) if the deceased was your spouse. If the deceased was previously married, you will need to give this information to the court.
- Names and addresses of all heirs, next of kin and beneficiaries
- Summary of the deceased's assets

Establishing an Estate Account

A Navy Federal Estate Account provides an efficient solution for holding estate assets in noninterest or interest-earning accounts while keeping them separate from the executor/administrator's own personal accounts. It consists of a checking account and companion savings account. Typically, the deceased member's assets are deposited into savings, then transferred as needed to checking for easy payment of taxes, debts and other obligations during the estate settlement process. The Navy Federal Estate Account gives the executor/administrator an accurate picture of the estate's finances at any given time—a real benefit when completing tax returns and other documentation. Navy Federal Estate Accounts have:

- a low $5 minimum balance for savings
- 2 checking programs to choose from: Association Checking and Flagship Checking
- free personalized duplicate-style checks
- free copies of paid checks
- dividends earned from day-of-deposit to day-of-withdrawal on the savings account
- the ability to earn dividends on Flagship Checking
- a combined, itemized monthly statement
- funds transferable between accounts online

To establish an Estate Account, you will need to provide:

- court documents designating an estate executor/administrator.
- an Employer Identification Number (EIN) for the estate. Applying for an EIN is a free service offered by the IRS. You can complete Form SS-4 and submit the application online at www.irs.gov, by fax at (855) 641-6935, by mail to Internal Revenue Service Attn: EIN Operation Cincinnati, OH 45999 or by telephone for International Applicants at 267-947-1099 (not a toll-free number).
- a completed Estate Account application. Call 1-888-842-6328 to request an application.

All documents above can be given to a representative at a Navy Federal branch or faxed to the Survivor Support Settlement Branch at 703-255-7963.

Specific concerns or questions regarding your responsibility as an estate administrator, the probate process or the estate settlement process should be referred to an attorney, financial advisor or probate court official.

Eligibility for an Estate Account

In the event that the individual was not a member of Navy Federal at the time of death, Navy Federal will permit the executor/administrator to open an Estate Account, provided all beneficiaries of the estate are members of the credit union. The estate executor/administrator does not have to be a member of Navy Federal or be eligible for membership to open an Estate Account. Navy Federal does not offer restricted or blocked accounts, even with a court order.

Duties of an Executor/Administrator

An executor, also known as a personal representative or administrator, is responsible for carrying out or “executing” the Will's instructions. Most often, an individual executor can easily settle a simple estate on his or her own. However, a large or complicated estate may require legal advice. The probate court usually requires an executor/administrator to be bonded to protect all interested parties against fraud, embezzlement or negligence by the executor/administrator. If you are named executor/administrator, it is your responsibility to pay debts or obligations, distribute the remaining assets to heirs and complete the necessary tax forms.

It is important to keep the estate's finances separate from your own.

The executor pays outstanding debts, files taxes and distributes remaining assets to the heirs.

Outstanding debts can be identified by reviewing the checkbook register and scanning the mail.

The following is a checklist of the typical duties of an executor when settling an estate:

1. Consult an attorney and a certified public accountant (CPA) about your duties as executor.

While not required, checking with these professionals is helpful because they are familiar with local probate procedures and the steps required to settle an estate.

2. File the Will and initiate probate.

As executor/administrator, it is your responsibility to file a Will with the appropriate state probate court and petition the court for "letters testamentary." These court documents may also be called "letters of administration" or by another name. These documents provide legal proof that you are the executor of the estate. You should get several certified copies of these court documents, as they may be requested when handling certain financial transactions for the estate.

3. Request several copies of the death certificate.

You will need certified copies of the death certificate to conduct estate business. These certified copies usually cost between $5 and $25 each, depending on the jurisdiction. They can be obtained from the County Clerk's Office in the county of the deceased's death, or the funeral director may order them for you.

4. Retitle property if necessary.

If the estate includes property, such as unencumbered automobiles, boats, other vehicles or real estate, you can transfer titles either to the named beneficiary or to yourself as executor. If no beneficiary is designated, you may, as executor, decide to sell the property and add the proceeds to the estate. Navy Federal will require a certified copy of the death certificate and letters of administration for any real estate actions. You should seek the advice of an attorney before you decide to sell or retitle the property.

5. List any indebtedness.

As executor, it is your responsibility to pay off any debts at the time of the deceased's death. You must notify all creditors of the death and invite them to submit claims to the estate. Usually, each state sets a time limit for creditors to submit claims. Some things to look for are:

- utility payments or bills
- hospital, doctor or other medical expenses
- loan payments or bills
- credit card payments or bills

6. Close credit union, bank and investment accounts, and open an Estate Account.

You should close any account owned solely by the deceased and transfer those assets to an account that will allow you to settle the deceased's bills and other obligations. A Navy Federal Estate Account can be used for this purpose (see page 9 for details). You should seek the advice of an attorney before you open an Estate Account.

7. Locate insurance policies and file claims.

Life insurance benefits are usually payable to designated beneficiaries and are not part of the estate. To file claims, you will need the policy numbers, full name of the deceased and certified copies of the death certificate.

8. File taxes.

Federal and state taxes for the deceased will need to be filed for the year in which they passed away and for the year in which the Estate Account is closed. Consult the IRS or a CPA for assistance. You should also seek the advice of an attorney.

9. Close the Estate Account and distribute the remaining assets to beneficiaries.

After making sure all estate debts have been paid, you can distribute any remaining assets to the beneficiaries and close the Estate Account. You should seek the advice of an attorney before you close an Estate Account.

Additional Information

Determining what taxes are due after a member's death can be complicated. You may need to contact the IRS, a tax attorney or a CPA familiar with both federal estate taxes and state and local state inheritance taxes. This section is provided for informational purposes only. We encourage you to consult with professional tax advisors.

Federal Estate Taxes

- There is no federal estate tax due on an estate—no matter how large—when all the assets are left to the surviving spouse.
- Beneficiaries other than the spouse are eligible for a federal gift and estate tax exemption. For the 2021 tax year, the basic exemption amount (“unified credit against estate tax”) relative to taxes on combined inheritances can be up to 11,700,000, it increases to $12,060,000 for the 2022 tax year.
- Federal estate tax returns are due 9 months after a person's death. A penalty-free extension may be requested before that date if more time is needed. During an extension, however, interest is assessed on amounts owed.

State Inheritance Taxes

Inheritance tax regulations vary from state to state and can depend on an heir's relationship to the deceased.

Income Tax Returns

Federal and state income tax returns are due on April 15 of the year following the death. If the estate itself generated income during a certain period of time, the estate must file an income tax return.

Real Estate Property Taxes

Taxes on a home or other real estate must be paid when they are normally due. Because tax laws are complex and change frequently, it is a good idea to contact an attorney, a tax advisor or the Department of Revenue in the state in which the deceased resided.
